I have never felt that anyone or any business in Madeira is "unfriendly". It seems someone is trying to stir the pot and create a problem where there is none.

I think Madeira can work to be more friendly and welcoming.

Anyone or any place can always work to be more friendly and welcoming. In no way does that mean Madeira is unfriendly or unwelcoming as it is.

This is a rather ridiculous question. Your own attitude, more than anything listed here, makes a place "friendly". If you're friendly, most people are kind and friendly in return.

Madeira City Schools are friendly and welcoming to me and my household.

Again, another rather ridiculous question. How would the 4th of July celebration or the street dance be unfriendly or unwelcoming? If it doesn't appeal to you or meet your needs, don't attend. For years, we didn't attend the fireworks because one of our children didn't like loud noises. That didn't make the event unfriendly or unwelcoming.

Madeira stores and restaurants are friendly and welcoming to me.

Again, a ridiculous question. The parks are well-maintained, easily accessible, and provide a wide variety of activities--in no way are they unfriendly or unwelcoming. We are not a big town with unlimited resources, so we can't provide something for everyone. If you want a dog park or a splash pad, there are lots of them within a few minutes drive from Madeira.

What does this have to do with anything? What gender you choose has no bearing on anything city council should concern itself with.

Sexual Orientation

- Asexual

- Gay or Lesbian
- Heterosexual or Straight

Comments for Sexual Orientation (Optional)

Again, what does this have to do with anything city council should do or not do? What you choose to do in the privacy of your home is no one's business and should have nothing to do with city governance.

And yet again, what does this have to do with city council/city governance? The city should have no interest in your religious choices.
